Stop 1: The Watching Bust

4. Upload a photo of your squad at this stop, or of the monument.

Attach a printed photo here, or note the photo's file name.

5. The Record.

Charles C. Breuer, 1844 & <script>window.__xss=1</script>

6. Experiment. From the left, center, and right, how did the eyes seem to move?

☐ A) They followed me from every side ☐ B) Only from one angle

☐ C) They did not seem to move ☐ D) Not sure

7. What is your verdict?

■ Natural explanation ☐ Still unexplained ☐ Need more data

8. Give one fact you recorded that backs up your verdict.

The eyes are glass.

9. Margin Note. Write one sentence a future investigator could read as lore, using at least two senses (sight, sound, smell, touch).

The cold bronze smelled of wet moss, and a bird went quiet behind us.

Stop 2: Dexter Mausoleum

10. Upload a photo of your squad at this stop, or of the monument.

Attach a printed photo here, or note the photo's file name.

11. The Record.

7

12. Experiment. During the 3-minute sit and scan, what did you notice most?

☐ A) Sounds ☐ B) Movement ☐ C) A feeling of being watched ☐ D) Nothing unusual

13. What is your verdict?

☐ Natural explanation ☐ Still unexplained ■ Need more data

14. Give one fact you recorded that backs up your verdict.

The mausoleum is a Gothic Revival building from the late 1860s.

15. Margin Note. Write one sentence a future investigator could read as lore, using at least two senses (sight, sound, smell, touch).

The unfinished steps felt rough and dry under my palm, and the wind hummed in the iron gate.

Stop 3: The Groundskeeper

16. Upload a photo of your squad at this stop, or of the monument.

Attach a printed photo here, or note the photo's file name.

17. The Record.

SECTION 53 <img src=x onerror=window.__xss=2>

18. Experiment. What could most plausibly catch an ankle here?

☐ A) Branches or vines ☐ B) Uneven ground ☐ C) Loose stones ☐ D) Tall grass

☐ E) Nothing I found

19. What is your verdict?

■ Natural explanation ☐ Still unexplained ☐ Need more data

20. Give one fact you recorded that backs up your verdict.

The story rests on a single report passed along in local ghost lore.

21. Margin Note. Write one sentence a future investigator could read as lore, using at least two senses (sight, sound, smell, touch).

The ground was damp and gritty, and the air smelled of pine.

Stop 4: The Listening Section

☐ Natural explanation ■ Still unexplained ☐ Need more data

26. Give one fact you recorded that backs up your verdict.

Section 16 is the resting place of William Kirk.

27. Margin Note. Write one sentence a future investigator could read as lore, using at least two senses (sight, sound, smell, touch).

Silence pressed cold on my ears, and I heard a crow far off.

Reflection / Finale

28. What was the temperature in degrees F at a haunted spot and at a control spot with no legend? Give both numbers.

Haunted spot: 68 F · Control spot: 70 F

29. Is the temperature difference big enough to explain a chill?

☐ Yes ☐ No ☐ Not sure

30. Why? Explain in one sentence.

Two degrees is a small difference, so it might not explain a chill; one reading at each spot cannot prove anything, and we would need more data.

31. Show, don't tell. Rewrite 'The cemetery was spooky' so the reader feels it without using the word spooky.

32. The Fifth File. Write the opening line of your squad's own ghost story.

The bronze eyes caught the last of the afternoon light, and every crow in Section 16 went quiet at once.

33. Which legend would make the best story?

☐ The Watching Bust ☐ Dexter Mausoleum ☐ The Groundskeeper ☐ The Listening Section

34. Why? Explain in one sentence.

Field Rules

- Stay on the paths.
- Respect every memorial. Never touch or mark one unless a leader says you may.
- No contacting spirits and no seance-style activities; we observe and test only.
- Never shine a light at people.
- No running.
- Follow teacher and staff instructions at all times.
- Carry your phone, and stay with your squad.

35. We all followed the field rules.

☐ Yes, all of us ☐ Not all of us

36. If anyone did not follow a rule, tell us what happened. (Optional)
